VISITING PROFESSOR STUDIES HEALTH AND WELFARE SERVICES

A senior executive in the Department of National Health and Welfare is spending the 1972-73 academic year at this University as a Visiting Professor in the Division of Health Services Administration.

RICHARD B. SPLANE, Assistant Deputy Minister of the Social Allowances and Services branch of the federal department, will be directing his attention to the delivery of integrated health and welfare services in Alberta, a concept which he has observed is becoming increasingly widespread throughout the world.

"It has become evident that there should be links between the health field and the social welfare field," says Dr. Splane. "In the past, they tended to be separated in water-tight compartments. Because of the close interrelationship between health problems and broader problems of social well being, health and welfare services should be readily accessible and closely linked."

Integrated services would mean, ideally, that community resource centres would be established to provide, under one roof, all the social services a person might need. These would include social assistance, day care, legal aid, counselling, consumer guidance, and a variety of health services. The centre also would be equipped to offer a manpower service, and perhaps courses for improving one's household or job skills.

Dr. Splane's role will be to assist in the planning and implementation of the research and professional training that are needed before such a program can be initiated. He also will advise the faculty members in the Division of Health Services Administration on how the division's master's program can best prepare students for administrative positions in the integrated health and welfare agencies.

Dr. Splane describes himself as "a social worker by professional association," but prior to entering the field of social work he completed an undergraduate degree in Economics and History at McMaster University and an MA in Modern History at the University of Toronto. He received his professional training at the London School of Economics where he received a certificate in Social Science and Administration in 1947, and at the University of Toronto, where he earned a Master of Social Work in 1951, and a Doctor of Social Work in 1961. He has held various positions in the Department of National Health and Welfare since 1951.

GENERAL FACULTIES COUNCIL

By FOLIO Staff

A special meeting of General Faculties Council was held October 16, 1972 to debate three resolutions put forward by the Campus Security Services Policy Committee.

BACKGROUND

In 1968 the members of the Campus Security Force were given special constable status, making them, in essence, sworn peace officers. In May 1971 a report from the General Faculties Council ad hoc Committee on the Campus Security Force was debated by Council members, and the matter of special constable status arose. Because Council members were unable to reach a consensus on the recommendations in the Committee's report, the Campus Security Services Policy Committee was established. In the meantime, a new Police Act passed in July, 1971 rescinded the special constable status. Some time later, an application to have special constable status restored was lodged with the Attorney General by D. GORDON TYNDALL, then Vice-President (Finance and Administration). The purpose of the special Council meeting last week was to decide whether the request should be withdrawn.

RESOLUTIONS

Two of the committee's three recommendations were approved by Council members. They are:

1. THAT it be recommended to the Board of Governors that the University withdraw its present request with the Attorney General for special constable status for the members of its Campus Security Force, and that no new request be submitted to the Attorney General without the approval of General Faculties Council
2. THAT the Campus Security Force be renamed Campus Security and Traffic Services.

A third recommendation, that Campus Security and Traffic Services come under the purview of the Director of Physical Plant, was defeated.

Snow fence is no match for a sunny afternoon, as students ignore the no-shortcuts barriers to stake out their territory on the quad. Even the noisy leaf sweeper keeps its distance.

VISITORS

■ M. HENRIKSEN, Harvey Mudd College, Claremont, California, gave a colloquium to the Department of Mathematics.

■ ROBERT W. READER, Department of Biochemistry, College of Agriculture and Life Sciences, University of Wisconsin, gave a seminar to the Department of Biochemistry.

■ J. S. EDWARDS, Manager, Bell-Northern Research, Ottawa, gave a colloquium to the Department of Computing Science.

PEOPLE

■ KATHRYN P. MORGAN, Visiting Assistant Professor of Philosophy, participated in the 1972 annual conference of the Northwest Philosophy of Education Society by reading a paper at the meeting held October 14 and 15 in Seattle, Washington.

■ J. G. LENARD, Assistant Professor of Mechanical Engineering, attended the 25th annual Conference on Engineering in Medicine and Biology, in Bal Harbour, Florida. He delivered a paper co-authored by D. WARREN, R. RAKOZ, D. MCCLARY and M. CHAPMAN.

■ DOUGLAS BARBOUR and STEPHEN SCOBIE, Assistant Professors of English, were elected co-chairmen of the League of Canadian Poets, at the League's third general meeting held at this University October 6 to 8.

■ JULIET MCMASTER, Associate Professor of English, was elected President of the Victorian Studies Association of Western Canada, at the Association's inaugural conference held at this campus October 6 and 7.

■ L. C. GREEN, University Professor and member of the Department of Political Science, participated in the first annual conference of the Canadian Council on International Law.

Professor Green was appointed Chairman of the Canadian committee on Law Against Terrorism.

The Stone Owl

WHO SPIKED THE HORS D'OEUVRES?

It wasn't exactly a "swinging singles" party, but the Meet the Profs wine and cheese party for Homecoming '72 did prove that alumni receptions aren't always the dreary gatherings they're made out to be.

First of all, there was good response to the Alumni Association's invitations, which helps since it's pretty difficult to get a party off the ground if nobody shows. There were 24 members from the 138-member Golden Class of 1922 at the weekend events. And from the Silver Class of 1947, says ALEX MARKLE, Executive Secretary of the Association, "there were 40 or 50 representatives, judging from the number of spoons that disappeared."

The organizers were thoughtful enough to stock the Faculty Club with a bevy of sweet young things who greeted the guests, helped them on with those tricky name buttons, and would have circulated among the guests to liven things up if necessary. But it wasn't.

Among the Homecoming guests was AGNES WILSON TEVIOTDALE, a 1912 graduate of the Faculty of Arts. If someone had trouble signing the guest register, Mrs. Teviotdale did the honors. From the Golden Class was H. R. "TUBBY" THORNTON, who had been President of the Students' Union from 1921-22. He graduated with a BSc in Agriculture, went on to obtain his PhD at the University of Wisconsin, and in 1929 was appointed Head of the Department of Dairy Science (now Food Science) here, a position he held until his retirement in 1958. When the General Faculties Council debate on tenure comes up next month, someone ought to consult Dr. Thornton for a clear analysis of the point to be debated. Says Dr. Thornton: "At one time the universities found they needed a probation period for faculty members, so tenure was established. It meant removal from probation, not continuing appointment. Somewhere along the line the interpretation seems to have changed."

Judging from my experience at Homecoming, that's not the only interpretation that has changed. I always thought the word "Press" on my lapel button was a noun, not a verb.

CORRECTION

In the caption for the photograph of the World Dental Congress display on Page one of the October 19 FOLIO, some unintentional verbal surgery was performed. BERND HILDEBRANDT, a fourth-year Art and Design student did much of the work on the display.

TRANSPLANTATION IMMUNOLOGY RESEARCH

The Transplantation Immunology Laboratory of The University of Alberta is looking for subjects to participate in research directed towards furthering the development of tissue typing.

The project requires families which: (a) have three or more children; (b) delivered the last child less than two months ago; (c) have husband's brothers and/or sisters (i.e. siblings) in Edmonton.

These families will be first tissue typed by conventional means, following which some of the husband's siblings will be selected.

The initial typing requires a small blood sample taken from the arm. The husband's siblings will be required to give an additional blood sample one week after the first sample. The blood samples can be taken in the home of the subject and require not more than 10 minutes. The total volume of blood taken for the study per person is about half that of a Red Cross blood donation.

Persons interested in participating should contact MRS. JOY SCHLAUT, or LINDA HYSHKA at the University Hospital, telephone 439-5911, extension 496.

AASUA—BOARD OF GOVERNORS COMMITTEE ON ACADEMIC CAREER PATTERNS

The Committee on Academic Career Patterns is examining the procedures governing the careers of academic staff at The University of Alberta. Specifically, they are reviewing the principles underlying the salary scale, such as the "no-overlap" rule; the system of merit increments, including examination of the 110 percent rule; and related matters such as early retirement possibilities and criteria for promotion.

The Committee invites written submissions from members of the University community. Submissions should be forwarded to GORDON UNGER, Secretary, Committee on Academic Career Patterns, 355C General Services Building.

CONTINUING MEDICAL EDUCATION

The Division of Continuing Medical Education is offering general practitioners a number of evening courses covering day-to-day problems occurring mainly in general practice.

The courses will be offered Tuesday

IAN MCREATH, Visiting Lecturer in the Department of Geology, has recently arranged a display of his rocks in that department. The public is invited to view the exhibition.

ALBERTA CONTEMPORARY DANCE THEATRE

The Alberta Contemporary Dance Theatre is anxious to add new members to its Ladies' Committee. Wives of University staff with an interest in modern dance and the performing arts generally, are invited to telephone CHARLENE TARVER at 436-4363.

The Dancers were incorporated under the Alberta Societies Act in September, 1971 and registered as a non-profit organization in January of this year. Its board of directors includes members from both the University and the local community under the patronage of the Honourable PETER LOUGHEED, Premier of Alberta, and MRS. LOUGHEED.

Performance plans for 1972-73 include a joint Christmas presentation with Edmonton's Theatre 3, a spring concert, and a tour of the province next summer. Workshops and a local television series are also planned.

SHORT COURSE ON GRIZZLY BEARS

ARTHUR PEARSON, a research scientist with the Canadian Wildlife Service, will conduct a four-session short course on grizzly bears beginning November 16 for the Department of Extension.

Dr. Pearson has spent nine years in the Yukon Territory during which time he completed a major study of the grizzly bear. He will be discussing the distribution and abundance of grizzly/brown bears, their behavior (with emphasis on bear-man encounters), and the management and conservation of grizzlies in Canada.

The class will meet from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. for four Thursdays. The fee is $12. Registrations are now being accepted at the Department of Extension in Corbett Hall, telephone 432-3033, or 432-3116 after 4:30 p.m.

SCOTTISH COUNTRY DANCE WORKSHOP

The Scottish Country Dance Club will be having its annual workshop October 28 and 29. Registration will take place at 9 a.m. on October 28 in Dinwoodie Lounge, Students' Union Building. The cost of the workshop, which will include nine hours of professional instruction and a dance on the Saturday evening, will be $5. Instruction will be given at all levels including beginners. Everyone is welcome.
